Introduction

The nationwide protests, which began on 28 December 2025 in the Tehran Grand Bazaar against poor economic conditions, spread across the country in the following days and transformed into anti-government demonstrations, reaching their peak on 8 and 9 January 2026. The state's response, like in previous protests, was violent crackdown. However, investigations by IHRNGO into the December 2025–January 2026 protests (hereinafter referred to as “the protests”) reveal that the Islamic Republic perpetrated one of the most extensive massacres of protesters in Iran's contemporary history. At the time of this report's publication, IHRNGO has gathered and verified the details of 4,219 individuals killed, the names of whom are published in the report's appendix. Among those identified are at least 420 women and 281 children (under 18 years old).

The documented figures must be considered as an absolute minimum rather than the final count. Widespread internet and communication blackouts, pressure and threats against families, restricted access to hospital and forensic information and the impossibility of independent investigations create serious obstacles to clarifying the full scale of the massacre.

The Islamic Republic has announced the death toll for the protests as 3,117 individuals, but a comparative review of the state's own official documents and registers indicates that the list published by the President's Office is incomplete and non-exhaustive. The names of at least 27 individuals included in the official lists of certain governorates are missing from it, and the names of some state-affiliated forces whose deaths have been officially announced are also absent from this register.

One of the most significant findings of this investigation is the unprecedented concentration of killings on 8 and 9 January 2026. Over 3,000 of the documented victims in this report were killed on these two days across various cities in 30 of Iran's 31 provinces. A review of the cases and testimonies reveals that a large number of them were killed as a result of direct fire from state forces using live ammunition.

Investigations by IHRNGO have documented similar patterns of lethal force deployment across various regions of the country, including direct fire into crowds, targeting of vital body parts, shooting from behind and at fleeing individuals, the use of snipers and the killing of people who had no direct participation in the protests. The geographical spread of these cases, the similarity in crackdown tactics and the concentration of a large portion of the killings within a very short timeframe raise serious questions regarding the planning, coordination and chain of command in the crackdown operations.

Mahmood Amiry-Moghaddam, Director of IHRNGO, stated: "The true scale of the protest massacres will likely only come to light after the Islamic Republic and through an independent fact-finding mission. However, even this minimum figure, alongside the testimonies and evidence we have gathered, indicates that the people of Iran faced a planned and coordinated crackdown of unprecedented magnitude in contemporary Iranian history on 8 and 9 January. Widespread firing of live ammunition, the targeting of vital body parts, the use of snipers and shooting at fleeing individuals demonstrate that the objective was not merely to disperse crowds. The existing evidence provides a serious basis for investigating these killings within the framework of crimes against humanity, and the perpetrators must be held accountable."

The peak of the killings occurred simultaneously with a nationwide internet blackout on the evening of 8 January. Following opposition calls, protests expanded in many cities and on 9 January, under continued internet blackouts and severe communication disruptions, the protests and massacres continued. Testimonies show that many citizens who took to the streets on 9 January lacked precise knowledge of the scale of the previous night's massacre. The impact of communication blackouts on concealing the magnitude of the killings and the public's level of awareness regarding the events of 8 and 9 January is one of the issues examined in this report.

The crackdown did not stop when the gunfire in the streets ceased. In the days and weeks that followed, the injured, healthcare workers and the families of victims faced various forms of pressure and harassment: ranging from the deployment of security forces in hospitals and the pursuit and abduction of wounded individuals to pressuring doctors and nurses, demanding money to hand over bodies, imposing official narratives regarding the causes of death, restricting funeral ceremonies and threatening families to prevent them from speaking out.

Judicial repression also continued in the subsequent months. Hundreds of detainees are at risk of the death penalty and at the time of this report's publication, IHRNGO¹ has identified over 100 individuals on death row and at least 29 people have been executed in connection with the protests. In many of these cases, there are reports of torture, forced confessions and serious violations of the right to a fair trial.

Mahmood Amiry-Moghaddam said regarding this matter: "The protests once again demonstrated that the Islamic Republic is aware of the depth of its legitimacy crisis amongst the public but has no qualms about employing the most severe forms of violence against the people to preserve its power. The massacre of protesters, the pressure on justice-seeking families and the threat of executing detainees are various components of a single policy to maintain power by instilling fear."

The true scale of the massacres will only be fully clarified through unhindered access to documents, witnesses and an independent fact-finding process. Nevertheless, the more than 4,200 registered names and the collection of testimonies and documentation in this report provide a clear, albeit minimum, picture of the scale of the slaughter that occurred in a very short timeframe across Iran. Documenting the names of the individuals killed and the circumstances of their deaths is a step towards establishing the truth, holding the perpetrators of the massacre accountable and achieving justice.

About this report

This report has been prepared with the aim of recording verifiable names and information of individuals killed during the protests and examining recurring patterns in their deaths. In addition to the list of those killed, the report examines testimonies and illustrative cases to demonstrate the scale and patterns of crackdown across different provinces. The report focuses on cases where sufficient information was available to verify identity, time, location or circumstances of death.

Documenting and publishing the names of victims extends beyond the compilation of statistical data. Each name on this list represents an individual life, an affected family and a documented account of events during the protests. Preserving these verified names and records safeguards historical truth, preventing the erasure or distortion of what occurred. Clarifying the full scope of the killings through rigorous documentation serves as an essential step towards truth-seeking and ultimately, justice for victims and their families.

Given severe communication blackouts and restrictions, security pressures on families, the difficulty of accessing medical and judicial records and the atmosphere of repression following the protests, this report does not claim to present a final count of those killed. The published list must be considered the minimum number of cases that IHRNGO has been able to examine and verify against specific criteria by the time of this report's publication.

The appendix of this report contains the list of all documented individuals killed. A total of 322 cases of those killed whose names were reported by only a single unofficial source and where insufficient information was available regarding their identity, time, location or circumstances of death have been included in a separate table.

IHRNGO will continue its efforts in collecting information, verifying names and documenting cases related to the December 2025–January 2026 protests. We invite families of those killed, witnesses, healthcare workers, journalists, local activists and anyone with access to verifiable information to contact us to assist in completing this documentation. New information may include details of individuals whose names are not yet listed, supplementary details regarding the time, location or circumstances of death, photographs and documents, as well as corrections to entries that may have been recorded erroneously or incompletely.

This list is not a closed or final document. Upon receiving credible new information, names and details can be corrected, supplemented or updated. Our objective is to present as accurate and documented a picture as possible of those killed and the extent of the repression, ensuring that no victim's name is permanently erased from the historical records of these events due to current restrictions on access to information.

Please contact IHRNGO to submit information, documentation, corrections to details or to report cases not included in this list:

presence of prefixes and suffixes in first or last names. Where investigations by IHRNGO established that differing names belonged to the same individual, these entries were consolidated into a single case on the list, with the informal or familiar name typically placed in brackets alongside the official name.

In some instances, an individual was recorded under different yet similar names (owing at times to spelling variations and at others to phonetic differences), an issue that appears to have arisen primarily from internet blackouts and severe restrictions on communication and information dissemination during the days of the protests. In such cases, after cross-referencing other details, published photographs and the time and location of death, only the correct name of the individual was included in the list.

There were also cases where the reported first name, last name, time and location were entirely identical for two or more entries. If our investigations yielded no evidence indicating that these referred to separate individuals, the duplicate entry was removed from the final count.

The verification process also uncovered several instances where an individual's name and photograph had been published in certain sources as a fatality, but subsequent investigations by IHRNGO revealed that the individual was alive. These cases were likewise removed from the final list. Mohammad Mahan Raei is one example of such a case. Based on our verification, Mohammad is alive and was mistakenly declared deceased, though his name continues to appear on some lists.

Limitations

Nationwide internet blackouts during the peak of the crackdown, threats and pressure on families to remain silent, restricted access to hospitals, forensic facilities and official documents, alongside witness fears of security repercussions, severely hindered the documentation process. Furthermore, in certain cases, the age, gender or precise details of a killed individual remain unknown. It is therefore crucial to reiterate that the number recorded in this report must be regarded as the minimum documentable count, rather than a final estimate of the total number of individuals killed.

Protest deaths: facts and figures

Protest deaths at a glance

- Out of 4,219 documented deaths, 4,188 individuals have been identified by their full names (first and last name).
- The identities of at least 3,090 of those killed have been reported by official sources and state media.
- The exact dates and locations of deaths for 3,653 of those killed have been recorded alongside their full names.
- The identities of 3,895 individuals have been confirmed by at least two different sources.
- Of all reported cases, 3,791 were men (90%) and 420 were women (10 %). At least two transgender individuals were amongst those killed, while the genders of eight people could not be established.
- At least 281 of those killed were under 18 years of age, with 25 under the age of 14.
- The youngest victim was just four and a half months old, while the oldest recorded individual was 78 years old.
- The ages of 843 individuals are not known.
- At least 3,356 individuals (91% of cases with verified dates) were killed on 8 and 9 January 2026.
- At least 60 individuals died in the following days and weeks as a result of injuries sustained on 8 or 9 January 2026.
- The highest numbers of deaths were recorded in the provinces of Tehran (1,278), Isfahan (555), Khorasan Razavi (441), Alborz (422) and Gilan (258).
- The lowest numbers of deaths were reported in the provinces of West Azerbaijan (4), Kurdistan (5), Kohgiluyeh and Boyer-Ahmad (5), Qom (6), East Azerbaijan (7) and Sistan and Baluchistan (8). South Khorasan province was the only province where no deaths were recorded.
- At least 13 of those killed were Afghan nationals.
- The list published by the President's Office omitted at least 27 individuals named on official governorate lists and a further 20 individuals identified in state media.
- At least 138 of the recorded deaths have been identified as state-affiliated personnel.

Breakdown of deaths by date

Based on collected data, at least 52 people were killed in total from the onset of protests between 28 December and 6 January. Within this timeframe, the highest death toll was recorded on 2 and 3 January, with 11 and 14 deaths respectively.

The number of deaths recorded by IHRNGO on 7 January exceeded that of previous days, with at least 50 people killed. However, the protests reached their peak on 8 and 9 January, when at least 3,356 individuals were killed across these two days (2,017 on 8 January, 1,334 on 9 January and five recorded as killed on "8 or 9 January"). This means that approximately 91 per cent of protest victims whose exact date of death has been documented were killed on 8 and 9 January. At least 60 additional people died in the following days and weeks from injuries sustained during those two days.

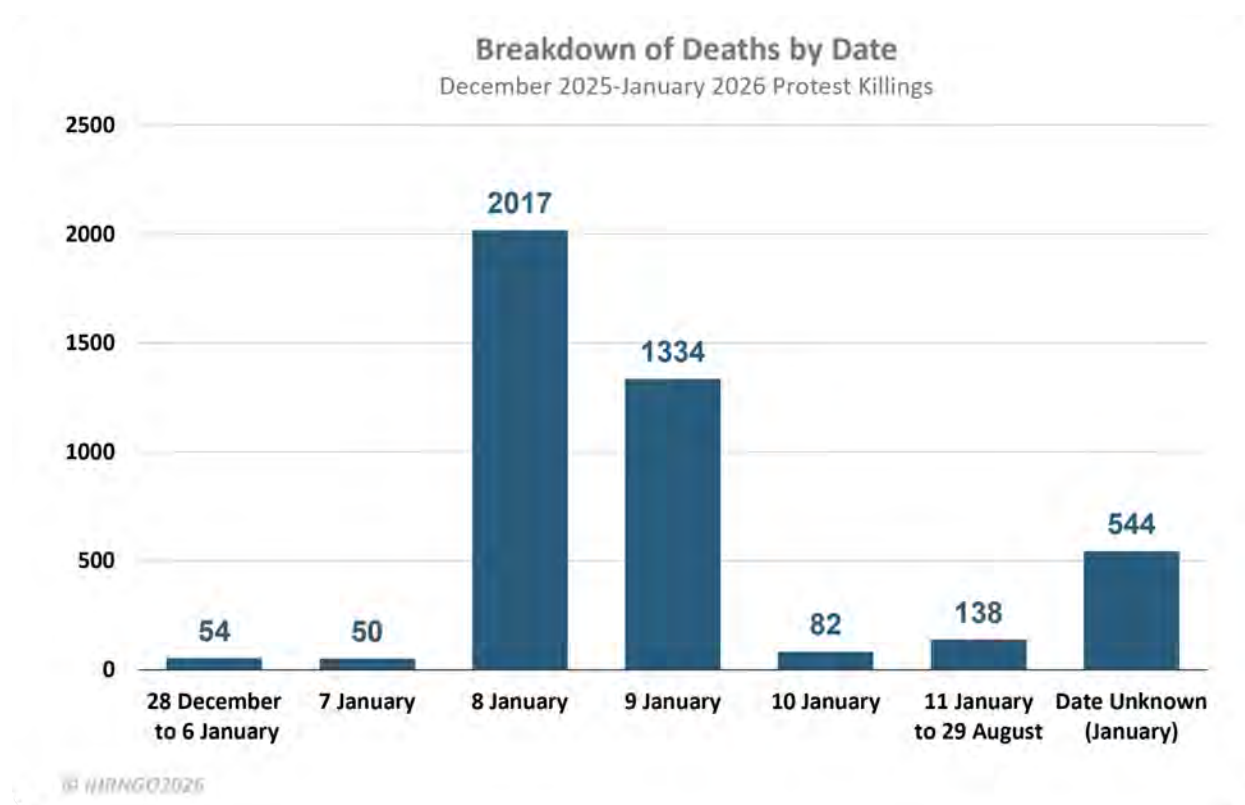

Figure 1: Over 91% of deaths with known dates occurred between 8 and 9 January, the peak of protests when communication blackouts were in force.

On 10 January, at least 82 deaths were recorded. Additionally, between 11 January and 29 August 2026, at least 138 protesters were killed; some lost their lives during memorial ceremonies for killed protesters, some died in state custody and others succumbed to injuries sustained in the days following the demonstrations.

The high death toll on 7 and 8 January demonstrates the necessity of separately examining security force deployments, the types of weapons used and the impact of the communications blackout during this timeframe.

Geographical distribution

Protests spread to all 31 Iranian provinces during the protests.¹⁷ However, the deaths documented by IHRNGO occurred in cities across 30 provinces, with no deaths recorded in South Khorasan province.

The highest numbers of recorded deaths were in the provinces of Tehran (1,278), Isfahan (555), Khorasan Razavi (441), Alborz (422) and Gilan (258) respectively.

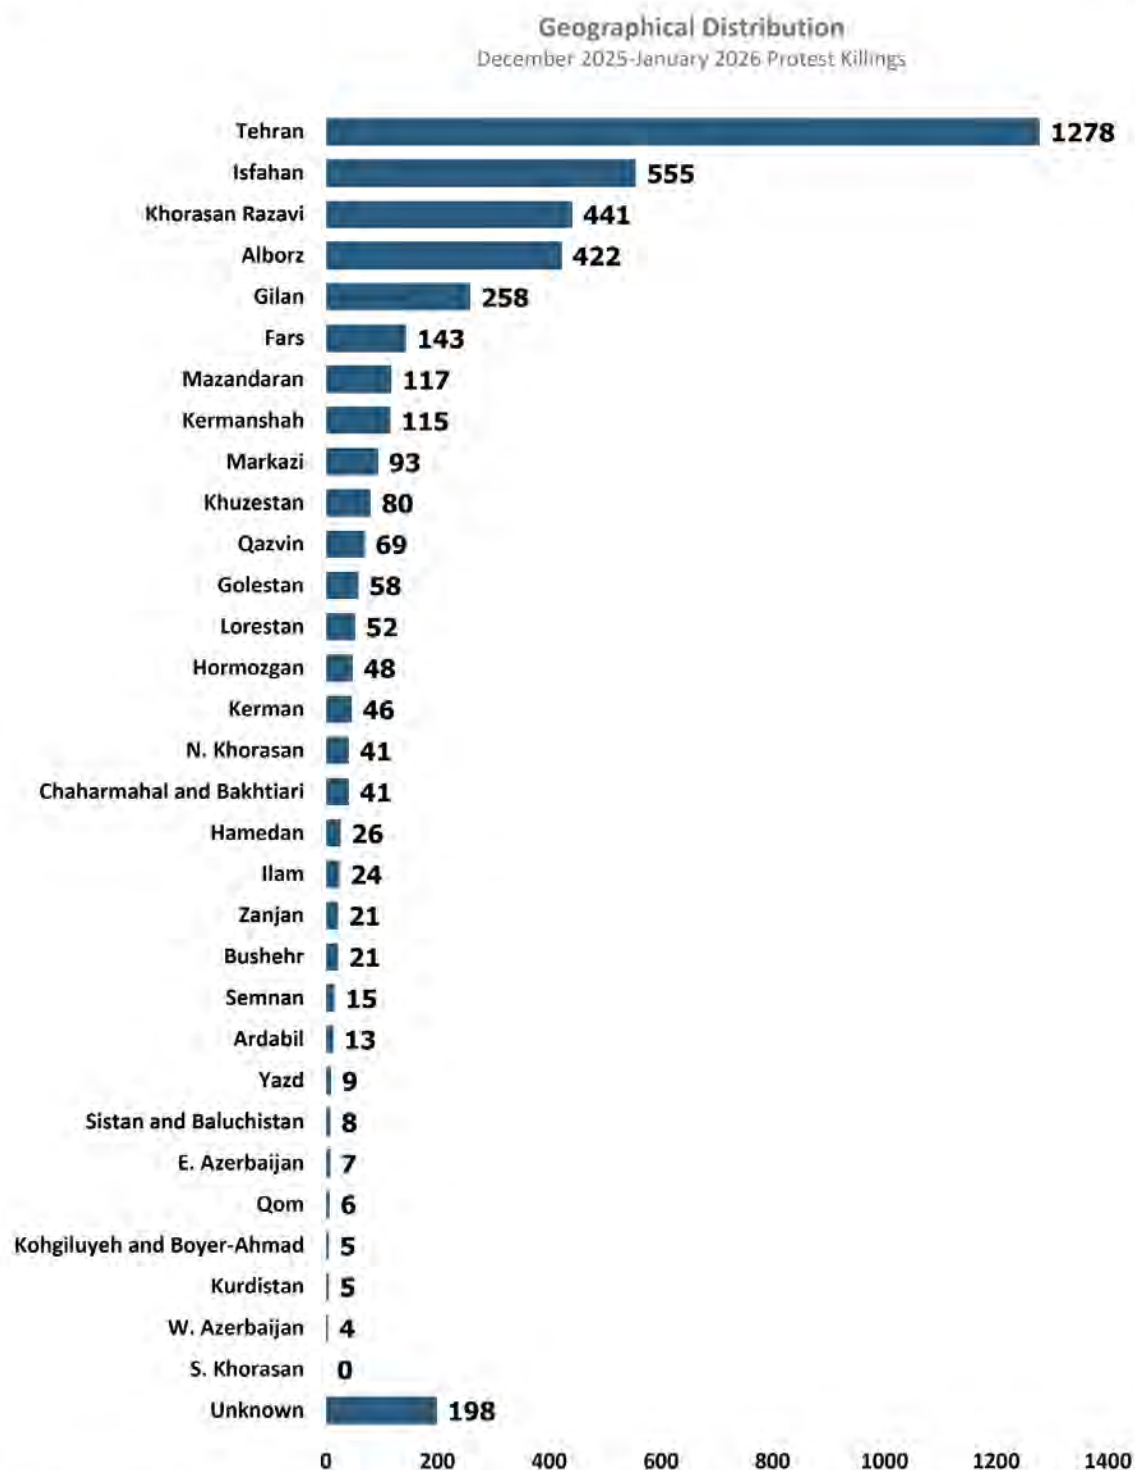

The lowest numbers of deaths were reported in West Azerbaijan (4), Kohgiluyeh and Boyer-Ahmad and Kurdistan (5 each), Qom (6), East Azerbaijan (7) and Sistan and Baluchistan (8) provinces.

However, it is essential to note that the capacity for documentation and access to sources was not uniform across all regions; therefore, variations in the number of recorded cases between provinces should be interpreted with caution.

¹⁷ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8530/>

Figure 2: Over two thirds of all deaths with known locations were concentrated in four provinces: Tehran (31.8%), Isfahan (13.8%), Khorasan Razavi (11.0%) and Alborz (10.5%).

Age and gender

Based on recorded data, 3,791 (approximately 90 per cent) of those killed in the protests were men and 420 (10 per cent) were women. Due to incomplete identification details for some recorded victims (where only a surname was available without a first name or gender), the gender of eight individuals was recorded as "unknown". At least two transgender individuals were reported among those killed, with their gender recorded according to available information.

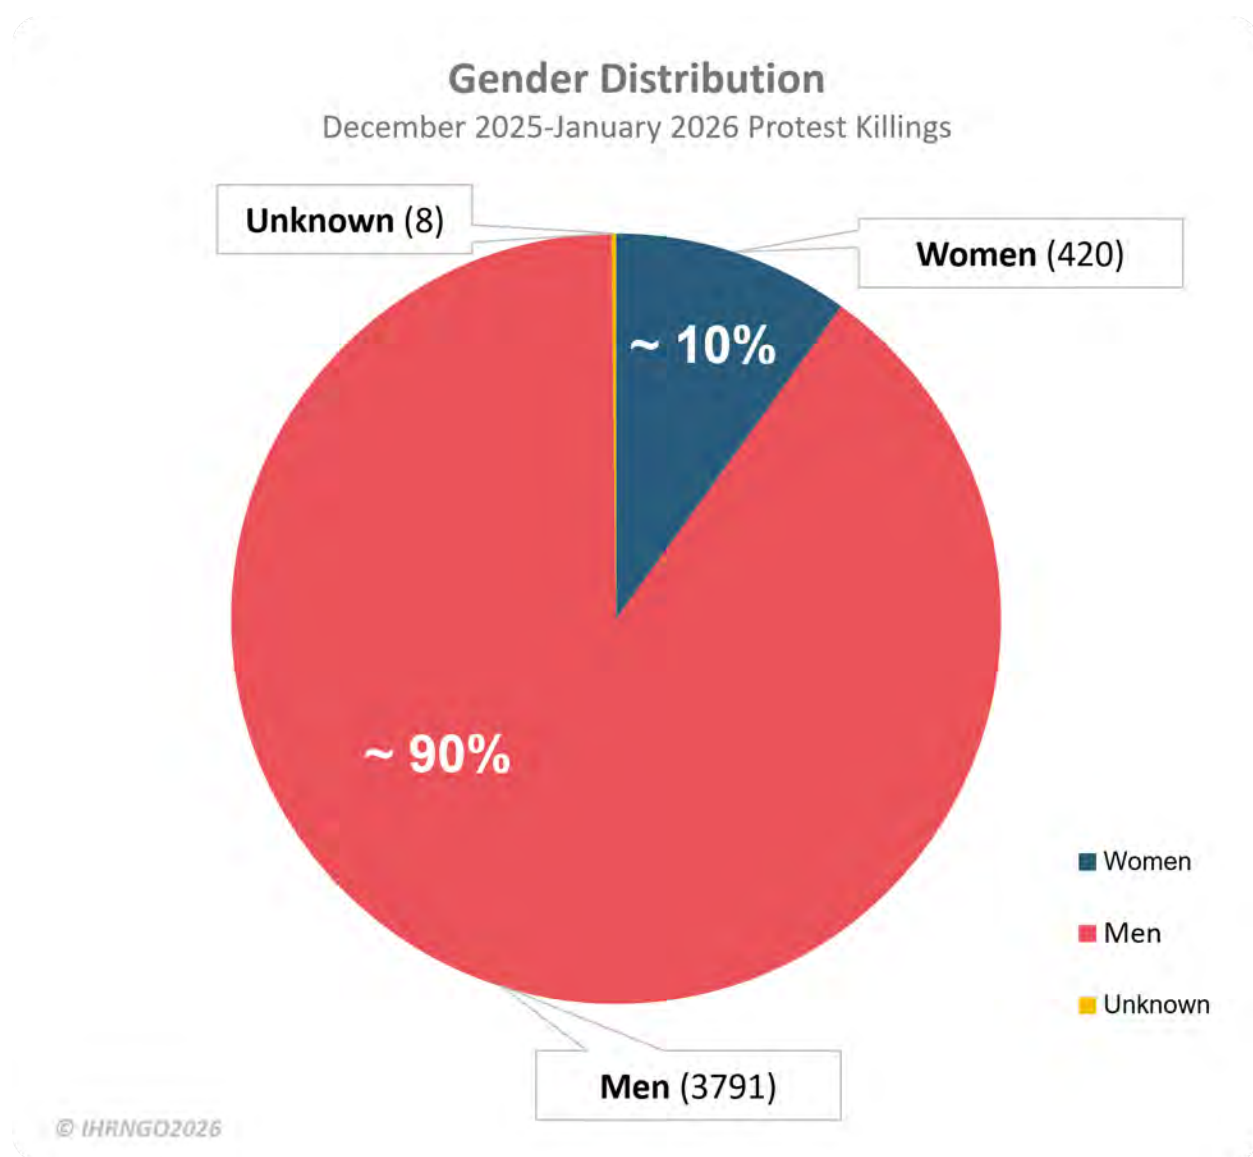

Figure 3: Around 90% of those killed were men and around 10% were women, while the genders of eight people could not be established.

The age range of those killed was extremely wide, spanning from a four-and-a-half-month-old infant to a 74-year-old woman and a 78-year-old man.

At least 281 of the recorded victims were under 18 years of age and were children.

The largest number of those killed (more than 40 per cent of victims whose age was recorded) fell into the 18 to 29 age bracket (1,373 people). A total of 896 individuals were in their fourth decade of life, with the number of recorded deaths decreasing progressively across older age groups.

At the time of writing this report, precise information regarding the age of 843 of those killed was unavailable; therefore, any final analysis of the age composition must be conducted once these data are complete.

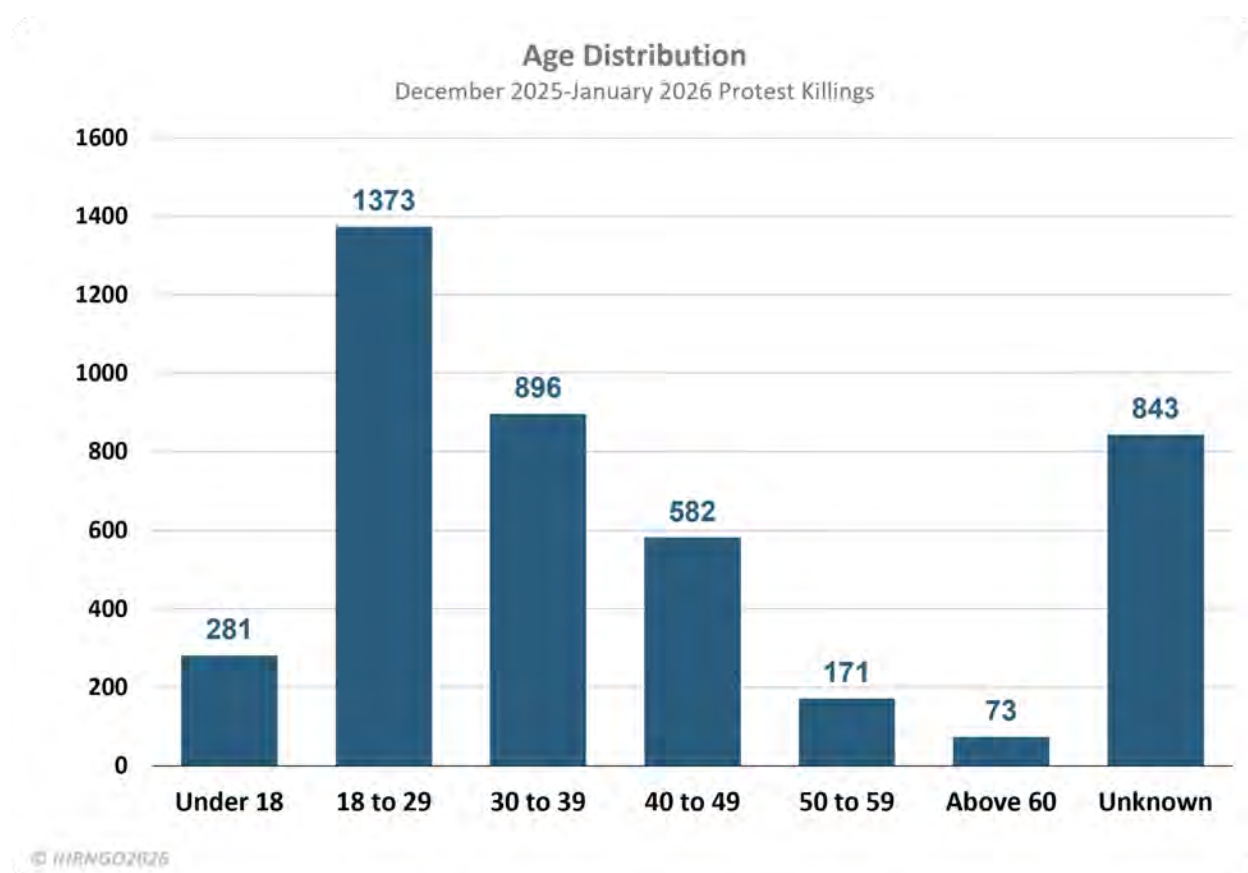

Figure 4: Over 75% of victims with confirmed ages were under 40 years old (2,550 deaths), led by the 18–29 age bracket (1,373 deaths; 40.7%). Individuals aged 40 and above accounted for 24.5% of verified cases (826 deaths).

Women

At least 420 women were identified amongst those killed, demonstrating that the lethal violence of state forces targeted women as well as men across various regions of the country. Women accounted for approximately 10 per cent of total recorded protest deaths; a proportion slightly higher than during the 'Woman, Life, Freedom' protests in 2022, in which 49 women (approximately 9%) were recorded among 551 killed.¹⁸

Women were killed in 23 of the country's 31 provinces. No women were recorded among those killed in West Azerbaijan, Kurdistan, Kohgiluyeh and Boyer-Ahmad, Qom, Sistan and Baluchistan, Semnan and Ilam provinces; however, the highest numbers of women killed were recorded in the same provinces that accounted for the highest overall death tolls: Tehran (126), Isfahan (52), Khorasan Razavi (51), Alborz (49) and Gilan (35).

In current data, there is insufficient evidence to conclude the existence of an independent pattern of gender-based targeting; nevertheless, the cases of women killed form an important part of the overall picture of the indiscriminate use of lethal force.

Among the women killed whose case IHRNGO has documented in detail is Rubina Aminian, a 23-year-old student who, according to witness accounts, was shot at close range from behind (page 24 of this report). Dr Mahsa Dezfulian Kermanshahi, a 39-year-old dentist, was also shot and killed in Fardis, Karaj (page 41 of this report). The case of Aida Heidari Saznaghi, a 21-year-old medical student at the University of Tehran who was killed by direct fire from state forces during the protests (page 48 of this report).

¹⁸ <https://www.iranhr.net/en/articles/6200/>

Children

State forces killed at least 281 children, 25 of whom were under 14 years of age, forming one of the most significant findings of this investigation. However, the ages of 843 victims remain unknown in current data, meaning the actual number of children under 18 killed may exceed the identified cases.

The documented cases reflect a broad age range. State forces shot and killed three-year-old Melina Asadi as she left home with her father to buy baby formula (page 23 of this report). The report examines the deaths of other children in detail below, including two-year-old Bahar Seifi in Neyshabur, 13-year-old Javad Kazemi in Tehran, 16-year-olds Amirali Ghanbarzadeh and Sina Ashgbousi and 17-year-old Bahareh Shahmehri. Among the Afghan nationals killed in the protests, IHRNGO recorded the case of a 14-year-old child who died five days after state forces shot him in the head.

These cases demonstrate that state forces did not direct lethal force solely at adults or individuals engaged in the protests. A dedicated examination of the cases of killed children, including the circumstances of their presence at the scene, the nature of their injuries, access to medical treatment and pressure exerted on their families, is essential to fully illuminate the scope of this aspect of the repression.

Afghan nationals

The crackdown during the protests did not target Iranian citizens alone; Afghan nationals residing in Iran are also among the identified deaths. A review of human rights sources and Farsi-language media shows that the names of at least 13 Afghan nationals appear among those killed in the protests. A number of those killed were directly present during the protests, while state forces also shot others who were not directly participating.

Due to the nationwide internet blackout, threats against families and the vulnerable status of Afghan migrants in Iran, identifying these killed individuals and verifying their details faced greater difficulties. According to reports, many Afghan families have been unwilling to publish names or share any information regarding killed relatives out of fear of arrest, deportation or security pressure. Local sources consider it probable that the actual number of Afghan deaths exceeds the identified cases.

R	Name	Age	Date of death	Location of death	Cause of death	Notes
1	Amirhossein Moradi	16	9 January 2026	Mashhad	Direct shooting with two bullets (to the eye and flank)	Worked as a mechanic's apprentice; buried in Behesht Reza Cemetery, Mashhad
2	Yazdan Tamana	19	8 January 2026	Mashhad (near Emamieh police station)	Direct shooting with live ammunition	Electrical engineering student; originally from Herat Province
3	Alireza Behboudi	20	8 January 2026	Mashhad (Vakilabad Boulevard)	Direct shooting	From Herat Province
4	Kiyarash Karimdadi	22	8 January 2026	Mashhad (Vakilabad Boulevard)	Direct shooting	From Herat Province

11	Unidentified (alias: Arman)	14	13 January 2026	Alborz Province	Direct shooting to the head	Died five days after sustaining injuries; born in Iran, family from Kapisa Province
12	Unidentified	22	8 January 2026	Varamin	Unknown
13	Unidentified	15	8 January 2026	Mashhad	Direct shooting	Did not participate in the protests and was targeted while shopping; his body was discovered approximately 20 days later.

Dual nationals and overseas residents

At least three dual nationals and one Iranian citizen residing in Italy were killed during the protests. In some cases, security institutions subjected families to pressure following the killing of protesters, while severe restrictions impaired the ability to hold public ceremonies or share information freely.

Given the disruption or restriction of communications during the days of the protests, security pressure on families and the difficulty of accessing medical and judicial records, this list must be regarded as the minimum number of identified cases, not the final figure of dual nationals or residents of other countries killed in the protests.

Table 2: Names and details of dual-nationals or residents of other countries killed

Name	Age	Nationality / Residence	Location of Death	Date of Death	Cause of death	Notes
Ehsan Afshari	39	Iranian–Swedish	Tehran	8 January 2026	Direct shooting	Father of a four-year-old daughter; had returned to Iran five months before his death.
Arshan Ghasemi	18	Iranian–Canadian	Tehran	8 January 2026	Direct shooting with live ammunition	Mechanical engineering student; shot during a public ceremony amid pressure from security forces.
Shahriar Hassan Zarabadi	65	Iranian–German	Rasht	9 January 2026	Gunfire	Son of Professor Nasser Hassan Zarabadi; had returned to Iran to visit his mother.
Yasin Mirzaei Ghalehzanjiri	U	Resident in Italy	Kermanshah	8 January 2026	Direct shooting with live ammunition	Student residing in Italy; had travelled to Iran with his family shortly before the protests.

Comparative analysis of official Islamic Republic figures and lists

On 21 January 2026, the Foundation of Martyrs and Veterans Affairs of the Islamic Republic of Iran announced that 3,117 people had lost their lives during the protests.¹⁹ According to the official narrative, 2,427 people were placed in a category termed "innocent people and guardians of order and security," while 690 were designated as "terrorists and rioters."

On 1 February, the Office of the President of the Islamic Republic of Iran²⁰ published the details of 2,986 individuals whose "information had been prepared by the Legal Medicine Organisation and cross-referenced with the Civil Registration system." Two days later, an updated version of this list containing 3,038 names was released.²¹ The government attributed the discrepancy between the 3,117 figure and the number of published names to unidentified individuals and identity discrepancies.

A comparison of the two lists published by the Office of the President reveals that 19 names included in the initial list are absent from the supplementary, updated version. While details and accounts regarding how they were killed have been published in unofficial media, the basis for removing these names from the final list remains unclear. One such case is Alireza Ghaleh Ghafi, a 22-year-old law student whom state forces shot and killed with direct live fire in Azadshahr on 8 January. IHRNGO documented the account of his killing and the security pressure on his family through an interview with his uncle.²²

Furthermore, IHRNGO's investigation shows that the final list published by the Office of the President not only lacks a transparent and publicly verifiable breakdown between protesters, ordinary citizens and state forces, but also fails to align fully with other data and lists published by official institutions and media of the Islamic Republic.

During those same days, governorates in several cities, including Rasht, Lahijan, Rudbar, Langarud and Shaft, published lists of those killed and, in some cases, lists of individuals buried in those cities. A comparison of these lists with the presidential list reveals that the names of at least 27 individuals whose deaths were confirmed in official governorate lists are missing from the presidential list.

¹⁹ <https://www.irna.ir/news/86057391/تعداد-شهادت-حمله-تروریستی-و-مسلحانه-آخر-اعلام-شد>

²¹ https://cdn.entekhab.ir/files/fa/news/1404/11/14/2115837_423.pdf

²² <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8608/>

Moreover, in the months following the protests, state institutions held commemoration ceremonies for a number of state forces and government-affiliated individuals killed on 8 and 9 January, officially announcing their identities. Examination of these cases also shows that the names of several such individuals were omitted from the list published by the Office of the President. Examples include 40th-day commemoration ceremonies for several of those killed during the protests held at the Shrine of the Eighth Shia Imam in Mashhad,²³ as well as a similar ceremony at the Shrine of Fatima Masumeh in Qom.²⁴

Images of the posters from these two ceremonies appear below, displaying the names and photographs of the individuals, which can be reviewed and cross-referenced with the presidential list.

Furthermore, state media, particularly in the first days following the crackdown on the protests, published reports of officials meeting with the families of some of those killed in various cities,

²³ <https://shahrarnews.ir/fa/news/392940/> مراسم اربعین شهدای فتنه آمریکایی و صهیونیستی - سه

²⁴ <https://www.irib-news.ir/fa/news/5720092/>

referring to them as "popular martyrs," yet the names of these individuals are also absent from the government's list.²⁵

These contradictions are of particular significance, as they demonstrate that the list from the Office of the President does not even include all individuals whose deaths were confirmed by other institutions of the Islamic Republic itself. Therefore, this list can in no way be considered a comprehensive list of those killed in the protests.

The presence of names confirmed by official institutions that are absent from the government's official list, alongside unidentified individuals and identity discrepancies acknowledged by the government itself, indicates the incomplete and minimal nature of the Islamic Republic's official figures.

In other words, the issue is not merely that independent investigations have recorded a higher number of deaths; official documents of the Islamic Republic itself also show that the list published by the government was not comprehensive. Consequently, using the figure of 3,117 as a ceiling for the number of deaths or as a basis to reject higher figures lacks documentary support.

Systematic patterns of lethal repression

An examination of the cases and accounts documented by IHRNGO shows that the violence deployed across various cities followed nearly identical patterns. The repetition of these patterns in Tehran, Isfahan, Gilan, Fars, Khuzestan, Razavi Khorasan, Lorestan and other provinces indicates that the crackdown was not the result of ad hoc decisions by law enforcement and security agents, but was executed under unified operational directives. The use of various military weapons, the targeting of vital body parts, shooting from behind, the deployment of snipers and the killing of individuals who were not participating in the protests all demonstrate that state forces aimed not merely to disperse crowds, but to arbitrarily deprive the lives of protesters and instil fear in society.

²⁵ <https://www.irna.ir/news/86057331/استاندار-گیلان-یا-خانواده-شهید-مر-دمی-حسن-یوسفی-پور-دیدار-کرد>

Indiscriminate killings and targeting of bystanders

One of the most prominent features of the crackdown during the protests was security forces' disregard for the identity of individuals present on the streets. In a number of cases, state forces killed individuals who were neither committing violent acts nor directly participating in the protests. IHRNGO's investigations show that security forces in many areas opened fire without distinguishing between protesters, passers-by or bystanders.

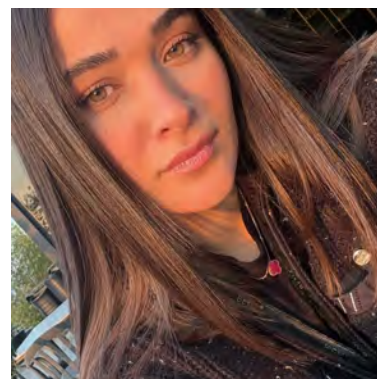

Melina Asadi

On the evening of 8 January, state forces shot and killed Melina Asadi, a three-year-old child from Kermanshah, as she went out with her father to buy baby formula for her younger brother. Under pressure from security institutions, Melina's family announced that gunfire from protesters had killed their daughter.²⁶ Her death demonstrates that the use of military weapons in residential and densely populated areas directly imperilled the lives of children.

Negin Ghadimi

State forces shot and killed 28-year-old Negin Ghadimi, a Tehran resident, with live ammunition on 9 January in Tonekabon, Mazandaran province. According to information obtained by IHRNGO, Negin Ghadimi was standing next to her father when direct fire from state forces killed her.²⁷

²⁷ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8531>

In numerous other cases, state forces shot individuals who were merely passing through the area or observing events, a pattern indicating that state forces targeted all those present at the scene, regardless of whether they participated in the protests. The broad age and geographical range of those killed during the protests also demonstrates that state forces deployed lethal force without distinction across age groups and across different regions of the country.

Shooting individuals from behind and while fleeing

One recurring pattern across dozens of cases of deaths during the protests was state forces shooting individuals whose backs were turned to security forces or who were fleeing the scene.

Rubina Aminian

On the evening of 8 January, state agents shot and killed Rubina Aminian, a 23-year-old textile and clothing design student at Shariaty College in Tehran, after she left the college and joined protest rallies. Sources close to Rubina's family, citing eyewitnesses, told IHRNGO that state forces targeted the Kurdish woman from Marivan from behind at close range, with a direct bullet striking her in the head.²⁸

Jahanbakhsh Hesarfirouzeh

A relative of Jahanbakhsh Hesarfirouzeh told IHRNGO that state agents shot this 70-year-old protester from behind at close range with shotgun pellets during the protests on the evening of 9 January in Shiraz, while he was attempting to prevent state agents from shooting at people.²⁹

²⁸ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8525/>

²⁹ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8611/>

The repetition of this pattern across various provinces in Iran indicates that shooting individuals who were retreating or fleeing was part of the operational tactics of the crackdown forces.

Use of lethal force and direct targeting of vital organs

IHRNGO has documented the use of weapons such as Kalashnikovs, G3 rifles, Dragunov sniper rifles, various types of shotguns, batons, tear gas and, in some cases, the use of military vehicles to pursue protesters.

An examination of documented reports, eyewitness testimony, information received by IHRNGO and accounts from victims' families demonstrates that law enforcement, military and security forces of the Islamic Republic made widespread use of military and lethal weapons during the protests. The nature of injuries, the location of gunshot wounds, the deployment posture of crackdown forces and the geographical distribution of deaths show that the objective of the operation was not merely to disperse gatherings, but to kill as many protesters as possible to end the protests through public intimidation.

These reports and accounts show that in a significant number of recorded deaths, bullets struck vital parts of the body, including the head, neck, eyes, chest and heart. The location of gunshot wounds indicates that state forces fired with the intent to kill, rather than to incapacitate or disperse individuals. The repetition of this pattern across numerous cases demonstrates the deliberate implementation of this crackdown tactic.

The use of snipers

One of the prominent features of the crackdown during the protests was the systematic use of snipers. Reports received from Tehran, Isfahan, Khuzestan and other cities indicate that security forces targeted the crowd from above after deploying on the rooftops of government buildings, Basij bases or high-rise buildings.

Shahabodin Sameni

A source close to the family of 46-year-old protester Shahabodin Sameni told IHRNGO that on the evening of 8 January in Tehran's Haft-Hoz Square, a sniper precisely targeted his left eye. According to the source, a sniper fired the bullet using a Dragunov sniper rifle, and that single bullet took his life.³⁰

Bahareh Shahmehri

On the evening of 9 January, direct fire from state snipers killed Bahareh Shahmehri, a 17-year-old schoolgirl from Neyshabur. A source close to her family told IHRNGO that the sniper shot Bahareh from behind. According to witnesses, the entry wound and bullet mark were larger than standard ammunition.³¹

Numerous reports from Dezful and Ahvaz also indicate that snipers deployed atop government buildings and targeted people in the streets during the crackdown on the protests in these areas.³² The use of snipers requires planning, prior deployment and the issuance of operational orders, serving as one of the key indicators of the systematic nature of the crackdown operations.

Provincial comparison of crackdown patterns

An examination of the body of reports published by IHRNGO regarding the protests demonstrates that despite local variations, the crackdown across different Iranian cities followed similar patterns. Accounts collected from Isfahan, Khuzestan, Mazandaran, Golestan, Gilan and Razavi Khorasan provinces present a picture of the widespread use of lethal tools by security and military forces, direct fire at protesters, targeting unarmed individuals, pressure on medical centres, widespread arrests and attempts to control the public narrative.

According to these reports, 8 and 9 January marked the peak of state violence, days when a nationwide internet blackout occurred, communications were restricted and numerous reports emerged simultaneously of state forces firing military weapons at protest crowds.

Isfahan: Widespread shooting of citizens and concealment of the scale of killings

According to reports by IHRNGO, Isfahan province was one of the main focal points of the crackdown during the protests.³³ Reports received from various cities in the province, including Isfahan, Najafabad, Shahin Shahr, Khomeyni Shahr, Shahreza, Falavarjan, Zarrin Shahr, Fuladshahr, Baharestan and Lenjan, indicate that state forces used military weapons against protesters and citizens.

Eyewitnesses described conditions in which state forces made no distinction between protesters, passers-by, shopkeepers and individuals who were merely present at the scene. Some accounts report widespread shooting in the streets, bullets striking buildings and bullet marks remaining on walls and shops.

In Yazdanshahr, a witness described how after the crackdown, the city resembled a "war zone." In certain areas of Isfahan, witnesses also reported the killing of individuals targeted not during direct clashes, but while in the street, behind home windows or while assisting the wounded.

Reports from medical staff also highlighted the high volume of casualties and security pressure on hospitals. According to accounts from medical personnel, security forces visited several medical centres, collected information on the wounded and subjected families and doctors to pressure.³⁴

Eyewitnesses also spoke of the accumulation of bodies of those killed during the protests at Bagh Rezvan (the largest cemetery in the city of Isfahan), the difficulty of identifying bodies and pressure on families when receiving the remains of their loved ones. Furthermore, reports emerged of authorities demanding large sums of money to release the bodies of some of those killed in the province.

This collection of accounts shows that the crackdown in Isfahan was not limited to the streets, but continued after protests ended through the control of hospitals, pressure on families and restrictions on the flow of information.

Khuzestan: Firing from heights, arbitrary deprivation of life of the wounded and widespread arrests

IHRNGO's report on cities in Khuzestan province, including Ahvaz, Dezful, Izeh, Andimeshk and Bagh Malek, detailed one of the most severe patterns of crackdown during the protests.³⁵ According to this report, security and military forces in the province used military weapons and, in some areas, fired at crowds from rooftops and elevated positions.

In Ahvaz, witnesses reported large gatherings and thousands of people taking to the streets. Documented accounts indicate that as crowd numbers grew, security forces intervened using direct fire. Some witnesses stated that in areas such as Naderi Intersection and Bahonar, forces positioned at elevated points opened fire at the crowd.

In Dezful, reports received by IHRNGO likewise indicate the deployment of armed forces across various parts of the city and the use of weapons such as Kalashnikovs. Witnesses described direct gunfire, the killing of protesters and even the pursuit of the wounded after clashes had ended.

One prominent feature of the Khuzestan report is its account of security forces' conduct after individuals were wounded. According to documented accounts, state forces deprived some wounded individuals of access to medical treatment, while families secretly treated injured relatives due to fear of arrest and prosecution.

³⁴ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8586/>

³⁵ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8670/>

Reports also emerged of widespread arrests following the protests, including identifying individuals using surveillance cameras, raiding homes and exerting pressure on families to prevent them from sharing information.

Overall, the Khuzestan report presents a picture of a multi-stage crackdown: first, street shootings; then, control of medical centres; and finally, arrests and security pressure on survivors.

Mazandaran and Golestan: Indiscriminate shooting and targeting of eyes

Reports concerning Mazandaran and Golestan provinces, including the cities of Sari, Ghaemshahr, Behshahr, Babol, Gorgan, Gonbad Kavus and Azadshahr, indicate a similar pattern in the deployment of lethal violence.³⁶

Eyewitnesses spoke of gatherings initially comprising large numbers of women, men, the elderly and young people; however, following the internet shutdown and communication restrictions, conditions altered and reports emerged of the use of military weapons.

In Sari, witnesses spoke of direct fire using weapons such as G3 rifles and machine guns. Some accounts received by IHRNGO indicate that state forces shot individuals present in the streets, including those who were fleeing.

In Behshahr and Ghaemshahr, witnesses also reported forces firing into crowds and injuring a large number of people. One recurring finding in reports from these provinces is severe eye injuries among protesters, an issue previously documented during earlier protests in Iran as a consequence of shotgun pellet use.

In Babol, reports indicated severe strain on hospitals, to the extent that medical facility capacities were overwhelmed and routine medical services were suspended to attend to the wounded.

In Golestan province, witnesses also reported gunfire in Gonbad Kavous, Gorgan and Azadshahr. IHRNGO received accounts detailing the surrounding of protesters, prevention of medical aid to the wounded and shooting of individuals attempting to assist the injured.

³⁶ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8646/>

Eyewitnesses also noted the deployment of children in crackdown operations in these provinces, an aspect that, if independently verified, could reveal new dimensions to the organisation of crackdown forces.

Gilan: Rasht bazaar fire and widespread crackdown

Rasht is among the cities where published reports present an exceptionally violent account of the crackdown. According to accounts collected by IHRNGO, widespread protests in Rasht began with large-scale public participation; however, following the internet blackout and the deployment of security forces, conditions rapidly escalated.³⁷

Witnesses reported the simultaneous use of tear gas, shotguns and military weapons to suppress protests. A central focus of the report on Rasht is the incident at the city's bazaar. According to eyewitness accounts, on the evening of 8 January, a number of people sought refuge inside shops and the bazaar to escape gunfire; however, a fire subsequently broke out, and state agents shot at individuals attempting to escape the site.

Rasht bazaar following the fire on the evening of 8 January.

³⁷ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8552/>

Gilan province is among the five provinces with the highest number of protest-related deaths. Witnesses also described high fatality counts, mass removal of bodies and large numbers of wounded.

Reports have also documented pressure on the families of those killed, including state authorities imposing specific conditions for releasing bodies, forcing nighttime burials and attempting to alter the narrative regarding the causes of death.

The crackdown in Rasht persisted after the protests ended, with witnesses reporting a heavy security presence, checkpoints, stop-and-search operations and an atmosphere of fear and intimidation across the city.

Khorasan Razavi: Severe repression and post-protest militarised control

Mashhad, the capital of Khorasan Razavi province, was also among the cities that witnessed a severe crackdown on protests, according to reports by IHRNGO.³⁸

Eyewitnesses reported large-scale gatherings in various parts of the city, including Daneshjoo, Haft Tir, Sayyad Shirazi and Vakilabad streets, as well as the areas surrounding Mellat Park during the days of the protests. According to these witness accounts, security and plainclothes forces fired military weapons and shotguns at protesters in several areas. Witnesses also spoke of citizens transporting the wounded on motorcycles and in private vehicles because, according to them, many were unable to seek formal medical treatment at healthcare facilities for fear of identification and arrest.

One key aspect of the Mashhad report is the targeting of homes provided by residents to shelter protesters. According to documented accounts, security forces identified these homes and raided them.

³⁸ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8543/>

Following the protests, a heavy security presence dominated the city, with checkpoints established, armed forces deployed across the area and citizen movement restricted.

Post-protest crackdown

Evidence gathered in this report shows that the crackdown did not end with the cessation of street shootings. In numerous instances, the wounded faced the risk of identification and arrest at medical facilities, healthcare personnel and first responders came under pressure, and the families of those killed were subjected to security restrictions and threats during the release of bodies, burials, mourning rituals and public reporting. Based on accounts documented by IHRNGO, this section examines the continuation of the crackdown following the killings and its various forms.

Transformation of the healthcare system into a tool of repression

One of the most alarming dimensions of the crackdown during the protests was the state's use of the healthcare system as part of the security apparatus to control, identify and arbitrarily deprive the lives of protesters. An examination of dozens of accounts collected by IHRNGO from doctors, nurses, paramedics, eyewitnesses, the wounded and families of victims indicates that hospitals in many Iranian cities were effectively transformed from treatment centres into facilities under security force control, where the injured were not only deprived of secure care but, in numerous instances, faced the risk of arrest, enforced disappearance, torture and death.

Securitisation of hospitals: End of the neutrality of medical facilities

One of the initial actions taken by security forces during the protests was their deployment inside hospitals, converting medical facilities into operational bases for the crackdown. According to reports received by IHRNGO, security personnel were present at entrances, emergency departments, inpatient wards and operating rooms across multiple cities, including Isfahan, Tehran, Ahvaz, Dezful, Rasht, Sari, Babol and Gorgan.³⁹ The objective was to locate and arrest injured protesters and control their treatment. Medical sources in Isfahan province reported that security forces raided Milad, Saadi, Sepahan, Sina and Gharazi hospitals, establishing a presence inside and confiscating over 500 medical records of injured individuals. According to these sources, agents also raided the homes of several physicians in search of wounded individuals receiving treatment outside hospitals.

In Tehran, an eyewitness told IHRNGO that security forces searched hospitals room by room, extending these inspections even to operating rooms, an action that created fear among healthcare personnel and severely disrupted patient care.

Additionally, the constant presence of plainclothes officers and intelligence agents in many hospitals deprived the wounded of any sense of safety, driving families to avoid transferring injured relatives to medical facilities, a factor that directly led to the death of many wounded individuals.

Denial of medical care: Weaponisation of treatment as a tool of punishment

Numerous reports indicate that withholding medical treatment from protesters was not merely a consequence of hospital overcrowding or general chaos during the protests, but in several cases constituted a deliberate policy aimed at increasing the cost of participation in anti-government protests.

In certain hospitals, medical facilities refused admission to patients identified as protesters. IHRNGO received reports about Fayaz Hospital in Tehran, where injured individuals were denied admission on political grounds and forced to leave the premises.

Some doctors also described direct pressure to prioritise state forces and deny treatment to protesters. In one account, a physician working in Lorestan province told IHRNGO that an influential doctor in the province's surgical department instructed staff to treat security personnel first, stating regarding injured protesters: "Let them die right here." According to this witness, instructions were given in some instances to disconnect mechanical ventilators from wounded protesters, while nurses who resisted faced threats of arrest.

³⁹ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8586/>

If independently verified, such actions could constitute deliberate denial of medical care and a flagrant violation of the right to life.

Pursuit, arrest and coup de grâce against the wounded

A common pattern across documented reports from the protests is the unsafe environment within hospitals for the injured. In Khuzestan province, eyewitnesses and medical sources reported that security forces abducted several wounded individuals following their admission to hospitals. According to IHRNGO sources, in Dezful, some injured individuals were killed after or during transfer to healthcare facilities in acts described by witnesses as a "coup de grâce." Consequently, many physicians were forced to treat injured protesters secretly in private homes. In Isfahan province, medical sources similarly reported a constant security presence in hospitals, prompting families to refrain from admitting injured relatives to official medical facilities.

Sajad Rahimi

One example is Sajad Rahimi, a 36-year-old protester who was shot with live ammunition by state forces on 9 January during protests in the city of Marvdasht, Fars province. According to a relative, Sajad did not seek medical attention at a hospital for fear of arrest and died as a result of severe bleeding. A source close to the Rahimi family stated that any attempt to hold a memorial service, honour Sajad's memory or speak about the circumstances of his death was met with threats and legal summons.⁴⁰

⁴⁰ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8574/>

Amirhossein Saeedi

Amirhossein Saeedi, a 19-year-old computer engineering student, was wounded by direct fire from the front on the evening of 9 January and died that same night at Fajr Hospital on Piroozi Street, Tehran.

A relative told IHRNGO that state agents beat and threatened his father at gunpoint while transferring him to the hospital. He was eventually taken to Fajr Hospital in Tehran under difficult circumstances, but treatment was delayed and conducted in a manner that the family believes contributed to his death. While these allegations require independent medical and judicial investigation, they serve as evidence of families' deep distrust in the safety of medical facilities.⁴¹

Farzin Poustashkan

Farzin Poustashkan Dourkehi, a 26-year-old protester, was killed by state forces during protests on the evening of 8 January in Isfahan. According to his family, after his transfer to Milad Hospital in Isfahan, doctors attempted to save Farzin's life despite a heavy security presence, but the severity of the wounds caused by live ammunition rendered resuscitation impossible.

The account regarding Farzin Poustashkan Dourkehi's transfer to a hospital in Isfahan following his injury shows that healthcare personnel exerted every effort to treat and resuscitate him, demonstrating that medical staff did not universally comply with or implement security policies.⁴²

⁴¹ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8614/>

⁴² <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8651/>

Persecution of doctors, nurses and first responders

Alongside the pursuit of the wounded, the state sought to dismantle independent medical networks. In numerous cities, doctors and nurses who provided treatment to the wounded outside hospital settings were targeted by security forces. In one documented case, a volunteer first responder in Ardabil had converted his home into a treatment clinic for the injured. He treated more than twenty wounded individuals, two of whom succumbed to their severe injuries. Security forces raided his home on 14 January, violently arrested him, completely destroyed his house and demolished his personal belongings and vehicle.⁴³

In Isfahan, in addition to raiding hospitals, agents raided the homes of doctors who assisted in treating the wounded. According to information verified by IHRNGO, at least 35 doctors, nurses and medical personnel had been arrested for treating protesters by 3 February 2026, including prominent physicians from Isfahan, Tehran, Mashhad, Golpaygan, Kermanshah and Qazvin provinces.

These arrests did not merely target individuals; according to members of the healthcare staff, the primary objective was to instil a climate of fear within the medical community and prevent the provision of healthcare services to injured protesters.

Collapse of public trust in the healthcare system

One direct consequence of the securitisation of hospitals was the destruction of public trust in the healthcare system. Several doctors and nurses told IHRNGO that many injured individuals left hospitals upon witnessing security personnel or refused to seek hospital care altogether. Consequently, medical treatment shifted to private homes, clandestine clinics and informal healthcare facilities.

This situation, besides increasing the risk of death and disability for the wounded, placed immense pressure on doctors and nurses who attempted to save lives under entirely unsafe conditions and without adequate equipment.

A comparative analysis of IHRNGO reports from various provinces demonstrates that the securitisation of hospitals formed part of an organised pattern of repression. The deployment of agents in medical facilities, confiscation of medical records, arrest of the wounded, prevention of medical care, persecution of doctors and first responders, deliberate denial of treatment to certain injured persons, and reports of the killing or enforced disappearance of the wounded following hospital transfer all indicate that the health system during the January 2026 protests was, in numerous instances, diverted from its humanitarian and professional functions into a mechanism of state repression.

If independently verified, these acts could constitute grave violations of the right to life and the right to health, as well as key elements in establishing the liability of Islamic Republic officials under international criminal law, including in assessing the commission of crimes against humanity.

Systematic harassment and intimidation of bereaved families

Documentation gathered by IHRNGO from the protests shows that a number of families of those killed faced a series of security pressures and restrictions following the loss of their loved ones. According to documented information, these measures can be traced across various stages: from the retention of bodies in forensic medicine facilities and withholding them from families, to the conduct of burial ceremonies and the subsequent post-burial period.

Documented accounts across multiple cases reveal recurring patterns such as demanding financial sums for releasing bodies, exerting pressure to accept official state narratives regarding the cause of death, imposing restrictions on mourning ceremonies and threatening families.

“Bullet money”: Payments for the release of bodies

According to documented evidence, several families reported being forced to pay substantial sums of money to receive the bodies of their loved ones or to obtain burial permits. According to families and informed sources, these sums were collected without official receipts and, in several instances, were accompanied by threats to withhold bodies or prevent ceremonies from taking place.

Hossein Mahmoudi

A source close to the family of Hossein Mahmoudi, 37, who was killed during protests on 8 January in Isfahan, told IHRNGO that agents refused to release his body:

"They would not release the bodies of Hossein and his friends. There was a massive number of bodies. On 17 January, Hossein's family were able to receive their loved one's body. State agents threatened them that they must not publicise the matter. To hand over Hossein's body, they extorted 400 million tomans (approx. 1,500 euros) from his family, 80 million tomans per bullet."⁴⁴

Additionally, according to field reports, in one case in the city of Babol, security forces demanded 800 million tomans (approx. 3,000 euros) from the family of a deceased student in exchange for releasing his body.⁴⁵

An eyewitness in Tehran also corroborated published reports regarding extortion for the release of killed protesters' bodies, telling IHRNGO: "They took 1.5 billion tomans (approx. 5,650 euros) each from two families of protesters killed in the crackdowns to hand over their loved ones' bodies, and that was after the bodies had remained in the Kahrizak morgue for six days.

Another family, who were financially well-off, were told that to receive their loved one's body they must pay three billion tomans (approx. 11,300 euros) and sign a statement asserting that their child was a member of the Basij. They refused this demand. It seems they check people's bank accounts, demanding more money from those who are wealthier."⁴⁶

Verified reports received by IHRNGO show that state authorities also demanded money from families to release the bodies of those killed in Rasht. According to witnesses, to release the bodies of some of those killed in that city, families were contacted and notified of their loved ones' deaths in the most derogatory and abusive manner. One father was told: "Come pick up your terrorist pest!"⁴⁷

Pressure to accept official state narratives on cause of death

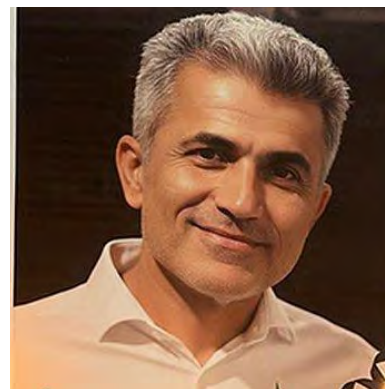

An examination of documented cases shows that in a number of instances, families reported being subjected to pressure during the release of bodies or registration of death certificates to state their loved ones' cause of death in a manner contrary to their own accounts. According to these testimonies, some families were instructed to report the cause of death as "cardiac arrest", "traffic accident" or "illness", or to refrain from declaring that death resulted from gunshot wounds.

In several cases, death certificates issued by official authorities listed terms such as "blunt force trauma" or "impact of a hard object." Families and sources close to them maintain that these terms do not correspond to the circumstances of their loved ones' deaths and fail to reflect the actual cause of death. Furthermore, some sources stated that when families opposed these state narratives, authorities threatened to withhold bodies or impose further intimidation.⁴⁸

Habib Khobipour

Habib Khobipour, a 47-year-old civil activist, was killed during protests in Isfahan on the evening of 8 January 2026. His family stated that while participating in a peaceful assembly, he was struck by live ammunition fired by Islamic Republic security forces.

According to Habib Khobipour's death certificate issued by the Isfahan Civil Registration Office, the cause of death was recorded as "impact of hard or sharp objects." Habib Khobipour's brother also told IHRNGO that security agencies required the family to accept that Habib was a Basij member in order to release his body, a demand the family rejected.

⁴⁸ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8593/>

Milad Mianekhah Monfaredi

A relative of Milad Mianekhah Monfaredi, 29, a former Malavan Bandar Anzali youth football player killed by direct live fire from behind during protests on 9 January 2026 in Bandar Anzali, told IHRNGO that security forces attempted to declare his cause of death as a "narcotics overdose", but the civil registry official ultimately recorded the cause of death as "gunshot wound."⁴⁹

Amirali Ghanbarzadeh

Amirali Ghanbarzadeh, a 16-year-old student, was killed by live ammunition fired by state agents during the January protests in Garmdareh, Karaj. A source close to Amirali Ghanbarzadeh's family told IHRNGO that when releasing Amirali's body, security agents required his father to sign a form agreeing either that Amirali was a Basij member and a "martyr" or that his cause of death was a "fall from a roof." According to the source: "The family refused to declare their son a Basij member and accepted the second condition. They were also instructed that the burial ceremony must be held with a limited number of immediate family members present and that they were forbidden from posting stories on Instagram or sharing information online."⁵⁰

Pressure to falsely attribute state affiliation to victims

In several instances, families of those killed reported facing pressure from security agencies during the release of bodies or in subsequent stages to accept a narrative contrary to their loved ones' actual identity. According to these accounts, some families were instructed to state in official documents or public declarations that their child or relative was a "Basij member", a "pro-regime force" or a victim killed by protesters. Informed sources state that in certain cases,

⁴⁹ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8596/>

⁵⁰ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8641/>

these demands were accompanied by threats to withhold bodies, the forced signing of written undertakings or restrictions on holding burial ceremonies.

Alireza Ghaleghafi

Alireza Ghaleghafi, a 22-year-old law student, was killed on 8 January by direct live fire from state forces during protest gatherings in Azadshahr, Golestan province.

A source close to Alireza's family told IHRNGO: "After a week and intense pressure on the family, they released the body at 5 am in the dark. They extracted multiple undertakings from his father and forced him to sign documents stating Alireza was a Basij member. Otherwise, they would not have released the body. Due to his emotional state, his father did not even comprehend what he was signing."⁵¹

The source also reported security restrictions during the burial ceremony, stating: "Several vehicles belonging to the IRGC Intelligence Organisation were present at the site, and the family was instructed not to hold a ceremony, permitting only immediate family members to attend the burial. Nevertheless, after the burial, the family held a mourning service contrary to the demands of the security agencies."

Dr Mahsa Dezfoulan Kermanshahi

Dr Mahsa Dezfoulan Kermanshahi, a 39-year-old protester, was shot and killed by state agents in Fardis, Karaj on 9 January. According to sources close to the family, they kept her body at home overnight to prevent what they termed a "body theft".⁵²

A relative of Dr Mahsa Dezfoulan Kermanshahi told IHRNGO that the Foundation of Martyrs and Veterans Affairs contacted her family and offered to register Mahsa's name on the list of "martyrs of the Islamic Republic", a proposal the family rejected.

⁵¹ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8608/>

⁵² <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8591/>

Danial Barkati

Danial Barkati, a 22-year-old from Tehran, was killed during protests on 9 January. His body was identified days later at Kahrizak morgue. A source close to his family told IHRNGO: "They informed the family that the cause of death was stab wounds; however, they did not allow them to view any part of his body other than his face, although they observed signs of gunshot wounds."⁵³

According to the same source, the release of Danial's body was subject to specific conditions, including "declaring Danial's prior membership in the Basij and burying him in a designated plot alongside his grandfather's grave". The family conducted the burial ceremony under the presence and surveillance of security forces and were forbidden from speaking about the circumstances of Danial's death.

Security restrictions and pressure surrounding burial ceremonies

An examination of documented accounts across multiple cases shows that burial ceremonies for a number of protesters killed in the crackdowns were also subjected to security restrictions and surveillance. According to information analysed by IHRNGO, families were in some cases barred from holding public ceremonies, choosing burial locations or publicising funeral details. Various sources also reported the presence of security forces at cemeteries, restrictions on attendees, and efforts to prevent the recording and dissemination of photos and videos of the ceremonies.

⁵³ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8645/>

Reza Eskandarpour

Reza Eskandarpour, a 37-year-old protester from Tehran, was killed by direct live fire from Islamic Republic forces on 8 January 2026 during protest gatherings in Sadeghiyeh, Tehran.

A source close to the family of Reza Eskandarpour told IHRNGO that security agents assaulted his family during the burial ceremony, confiscated their mobile phones and deleted photos and videos recorded of the service. According to this source, family members were also threatened with arrest.⁵⁴

Mohammad Jamshidi

Mohammad Jamshidi, a 42-year-old athlete and protester, was shot and killed by live fire from state forces in January in western Tehran.

According to information received by IHRNGO, his family faced restrictions upon receiving his body. A close source stated: "The family was told that burial in Tehran was not permitted, except in a designated plot, without a headstone and without holding a ceremony. Ultimately, the family was forced to transfer Mohammad's body to a village near Tehran and bury him without a public service."⁵⁵

⁵⁴ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8533/>

⁵⁵ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8604/>

Siavash Mansourinejad

Siavash Mansourinejad, 30, originally from Andimeshk and residing in Karaj, was killed by state agents on 9 January during protests in Karaj.

A source close to his family told IHRNGO: "The family tried to prevent Siavash's body from falling into the hands of state agents. The burial ceremony was also held without public announcement and with only a limited number of relatives present."⁵⁶

According to the source, due to concerns over security pressure, they held no ceremony in Karaj, conducting only a restricted service in another city attended by a small number of close relatives. The source added that several family members faced security threats and pressure following the event.

Ongoing pressure, security surveillance and forced undertakings from families

Documentation collected by IHRNGO shows that pressure exerted on the families of a number of those killed was not limited to the release of bodies or burial ceremonies, but in several cases continued after the burials. According to accounts from families and sources close to them, these pressures included summonses by security agencies, threatening phone calls, forced undertakings to refrain from publicising information, holding memorial services or speaking with media, and threats to arrest family members.

⁵⁶ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8648/>

Sina Ashgboosi

Sina Ashgboosi was killed on the evening of 8 January in Tehran, at Tehranpars Third Square, just days after his 16th birthday, when state agents fired two live rounds into his abdomen and heart.

A relative told IHRNGO: "Security agencies extracted a written undertaking from the family that Sina's burial ceremony would be held quietly and without public announcement."⁵⁷

Amirhossein Saeedi

Amirhossein Saeedi was killed on the evening of 9 January by direct live fire from state forces in Tehran. A source close to his family told IHRNGO that members of his family have faced continuous pressure and threats since Amirhossein was killed. According to the source, "individuals from the local Basij, a member of parliament, and representatives from the Foundation of Martyrs and Veterans Affairs and the governorate approached the family, threatening them that they must declare Amirhossein a Basij martyr." The source also stated that Amirhossein's father, citing ongoing pressure and threats against the family, expressed deep concern over what would happen to his other 10-year-old child if something were to happen to him.⁵⁸

In another case, a source close to the family of one of those killed told IHRNGO of security pressure on family members, stating: "Finally, after three days of searching, they identified the body using a specific code. However, to receive the body, the family were forced to sign a written undertaking under which they were required to declare that 'terrorists' had killed their son, and were prohibited from speaking to the media. The family did not accept the involvement of 'terrorists' in Mohammad's death, but signed the undertaking under pressure solely to receive their child's body."

⁵⁷ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8582/>

⁵⁸ <https://iranhr.net/en/articles/8614/>

According to the source, "even on the day of the burial, security forces extracted new undertakings from the family, including refraining from filming, assembling or granting interviews to the media. Only after these undertakings were signed did they allow the body to be buried, though the burial was carried out in the location chosen by the family."

Coerced television interviews with bereaved families and narrative engineering

Alongside pressure on bereaved families of those killed regarding the release of bodies and the conduct of burial services, incidents have also been reported where state media used family members to reproduce official state narratives.

Mohammad Erfan Faraji

One documented case is Mohammad Erfan Faraji, an 18-year-old youth killed in Tehran on the evening of 8 January. Following his death, Islamic Republic of Iran Broadcasting (IRIB) broadcast an interview with his family presenting a narrative that Erfan had left home merely to run errands and had not participated in the protests. This narrative was later refuted by Erfan's uncle, with reports also emerging regarding pressure exerted on the family to provide this account.⁵⁹

Sepehr Ebrahimi and Sepehr Shokri

Another documented case involves a viral video showing a father searching for his son among bodies at the Kahrizak forensic medicine facility, calling out "Where are you, Sepehr, my son?". Following the video's widespread impact, state media broadcast an interview with the father of ⁵⁹ <https://farsnews.ir/sajjad/خون-های-یاسی-که-ضدانقلاب-مصادر-کرد>

Sepehr Ebrahimi, a 19-year-old man killed by direct live fire from state forces on 9 January, to claim that the viral footage was fabricated.⁶⁰

However, it later emerged that the father in the viral video was actually searching for his son, Sepehr Shokri, a 25-year-old protester who had been killed on 8 January.

This case is significant because the interview with the family was not conducted merely to present their personal account of their child, but was leveraged within state media's efforts to discredit video documentation of the killing of protesters.

Aida Heidari Saznaghi

The name of Aida Heidari Saznaghi, a 21-year-old medical student at the University of Tehran killed during protests on 8 January in Tehran, was also featured alongside her family in a report by the state-affiliated Mehr news agency titled "Aida Heidari, victim of Mossad agents in recent riots". Citing an interview broadcast on IRIB Channel 2 with Aida's parents, the report framed her death within the state's official narrative regarding the alleged involvement of "Mossad agents" in the January anti-government protests.⁶¹

Javad Kazemi

Fars News Agency, affiliated with the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC), similarly broadcast a video interview with the parents of Javad Kazemi, a 13-year-old child killed during protests on 8 January in Tehran, asserting that protesters were responsible for his death.⁶²

Bahar Seifi

Another example is Bahar Seifi, a two-year-old child killed on the evening of 9 January in Neyshabur. IRIB placed her family before the camera, and in the broadcast report, her family stated that protesters were responsible for their child's death.⁶³

Internet blackout and the extent of public knowledge

Communications blackout during the peak of killings

The internet blackout played a crucial role in concealing the extent of the killings during the initial hours and preventing a public picture of nationwide events from rapidly emerging. With access to social media platforms and independent news outlets virtually cut off, and text messaging and telephone calls severely disrupted in some regions, citizens were effectively deprived of the ability to inform one another or gauge the scale of repression in other cities.

The simultaneous onset of the widespread, multi-layered communications blackout and massacre across multiple cities strongly reinforces the concern that restricting communications was not merely a reactive measure, but part of prior preparations to execute large-scale repression while preventing the rapid dissemination of information. Establishing the full circumstances of this matter, including the timeline, the decision-making authority responsible for the shutdown, and its connection to the operational orders of security forces, requires an independent investigation and access to state documents.

Public knowledge of killings

Testimonies gathered by IHRNGO show that at least a segment of the population who took to the streets on 9 January had no precise knowledge of the scale of the killings from the previous night. In the absence of the internet, the primary non-state sources of information for many people inside Iran were diaspora Farsi-language satellite television channels. However, witness accounts indicate that during the initial hours, broadcasts of widespread crowds and calls for continued protests were more readily available to viewers than reports concerning the scale of the killings.

A woman residing in Tehran spoke to IHRNGO about the night of 8 January and how she learned of events: "I didn't go out on Thursday night. I heard gunfire in the distance, but I thought it was fireworks or warning shots into the air. Our source of information was satellite television, particularly Iran International. On Friday, broadcasts focused mostly on the crowds of protesters and calls to action, and we heard nothing about the large scale of the killings."

Another male resident of Tehran who did not participate in protests on Thursday, 8 January, stated that he first learned of heavy casualties the following morning through conversations among commuters on the metro: "On Friday morning in the metro, I heard from some people that a large number had been killed the day before; otherwise, we had no knowledge of the scale of the killings. We could not even send or receive text messages."

Another account reveals that the lack of information regarding the extent of the crackdown influenced the decision of some individuals to join the protests on 9 January. A male Tehran resident who took to the streets with his son that day told IHRNGO: "On Friday 9 January, following the calls to action, my son and I decided to join the protests. We were certain that this time the regime would not fire on people like before, because Mr Trump had also warned the regime. We thought that this time the regime was finished and that those who issued the calls to action surely had a plan and support."

These accounts indicate that for a portion of the population, the perceived picture of the situation on the morning and throughout the day of 9 January diverged significantly from the reality that had unfolded in the streets of numerous cities the previous night. The internet blackout and disruptions to other communication channels prevented the rapid formation of a public understanding regarding the scale of the killings. Consequently, a number of citizens may have decided to take to the streets without being aware of the extent to which lethal force was being deployed by state forces.

At the same time, these testimonies alone cannot serve as a basis for gauging the level of awareness across Iranian society as a whole during that period. To establish more precisely what citizens knew during the hours and days of 8 and 9 January, which sources provided their information, and how media coverage impacted their decisions to continue participating in protests, more comprehensive and independent research is required.

Suspicious deaths in the aftermath of protests

A significant dimension of the crackdown on the January 2026 protests involves cases of individuals who died days or weeks later following their participation in demonstrations, detention or encounters with security forces, rather than dying at the scene or immediately from direct injuries. In several of these cases, the official cause of death was declared to be a medical condition such as cardiac arrest, whereas families or sources close to the victims reported abnormal physical conditions, marks of physical abuse, torture, poisoning or other suspicious circumstances.

IHRNGO has examined the deaths of at least 12 individuals in connection with these circumstances: Mehdi Mesbah, Abbas Deljoui, Mani Rahmani, Navid Soltanpour, Alireza Beiranvand, Fereshteh Dolatkah, Amirreza Ahmadi, Milad Malekmohammadi, Masoud Dashtbozorgi, Amir Davoudabadi, Taghi Salimi and Bijan Habibi.

A summary of the case information for these individuals is provided in Table 3.

Due to the lack of access to independent medical and judicial investigations in Iran, not all of these cases can be formally categorised as "state killings". Nevertheless, the time lapse between the initial incident and death, detention prior to death, sudden physical deterioration, discrepancies between official causes of death and family accounts, as well as security pressure exerted on families, reinforce the critical need for independent investigation of these cases.

Death of state forces and execution of accused protesters

Alongside the widespread crackdown on protesters, the Islamic Republic claimed that a significant number of law enforcement, security personnel and state supporters were killed during these protests. To date, no precise or itemised figures regarding state-affiliated casualties during these protests have been published by the authorities. The latest accessible official table detailing police and security personnel casualties by province was published on 11 January 2026; without providing names, it recorded at least 136 casualties across provinces with specified figures under the broad categories of FARAJA (Police Command of the Islamic Republic), Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) agents and Basij (voluntary wing of IRGC) forces.⁶⁵ Specified statistics were not provided for Tehran and Mazandaran provinces. At the time of writing, authorities have not released a complete list of names or a final, comprehensive and itemised breakdown of all military, law enforcement and security casualties nationwide.

To ascertain the actual number of state forces killed, a more precise methodology involves examining the names and details of individuals whose affiliation with FARAJA, the IRGC, the Basij or other state entities has been confirmed by official bodies or independent sources. IHRNGO has verified and identified the names and identities of 138 state personnel killed during the January 2026 protests.

Among the state forces killed during the protests, several cases carry particular significance due to rank or organisational responsibility, including:

- Shahin Dehghani Kakavandi, a FARAJA officer holding the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, was killed on 7 January 2026 in Malard.⁶⁶ State media reported that he was attacked while on a mission to maintain security. Mohammad Abbasi, a 55-year-old protester, was subsequently convicted and executed.⁶⁷
- Mohammadjavad Bakhshian Badakhshi, a FARAJA officer with the rank of Major, was killed during the January protests in Hamedan.⁶⁸ Fathollah Avari was convicted and executed.⁶⁹
- Farajollah Shoostari was a Basij member who held notable political and security standing. Having previously served as acting deputy governor for political, security and social affairs in Semnan province, he was killed during protests on 9 January in Mashhad.⁷⁰

- Ali Akbar Hosseinzadeh, the prosecutor of Esfarayen, was among the state personnel killed on 8 January.⁷¹

Geographical distribution of state casualties

According to an official table published by Islamic Republic media outlets on 11 January 2026, at least 136 police (FARAJA), IRGC and Basij personnel, referred to in regime media rhetoric as "defenders of security martyrs", were killed across provinces where casualty figures were specified. This table placed Isfahan at the top with 30 deaths, followed by Fars with 13, Qazvin with 9, North Khorasan and Kermanshah with 8 each, and Razavi Khorasan and Gilan with 7 each. The number of state casualties for Tehran and Mazandaran was listed as "unspecified," while no figures were provided for several other provinces. Consequently, the figure of 136 must be regarded as the minimum number of specified cases in this table.

The geographical pattern of these statistics highlights Isfahan as the primary nexus of state casualties. The 30 recorded deaths in this province account for approximately 22 per cent of all recorded cases in the table. Furthermore, the five provinces of Isfahan, Fars, Qazvin, North Khorasan and Kermanshah accounted for a total of 68 deaths, representing nearly half of the specified cases.

Execution of protesters for death of state forces

The Islamic Republic has issued death sentences and carried out the execution of a number of protesters in relation to the death of state forces. From the outset, Islamic Republic officials linked protesters to foreign states, vowed swift proceedings and harsh punishments,⁷² declaring protesters all to be moharebs (one who wages war against God), a charge punishable by death.⁷³ Protesters were sentenced to death in grossly unfair trials with documented cases of confessions extracted under torture and coercion, denial of access to effective legal counsel, summary trials and hasty executions.

Since 19 March 2026, the Islamic Republic has announced the execution of 29 men in connection with the protests while hundreds of others are at risk of death penalty sentences and execution. On 14 September 2026, IHRNGO published a report identifying a hundred protesters, including five children, who were sentenced to death across thirteen provinces.⁷⁴ The number of protesters at risk of death sentences and executions is certainly higher.

Of the 29 men executed in connection with the protests, IHRNGO identified 13 whose cases involved allegations by the Islamic Republic of murder, complicity in murder or responsibility for events leading to the deaths of state forces:

Saleh Mohammadi, Saeed Davoudi, Mehdi Ghasemi, Mohammad Abbasi, Fathollah Avari, Mehdi Rasouli, Mohammadreza Miri, Ebrahim Dowlatabadi Nejad, Erfan Esfandiari, Gol-Mohammad Mohammadi, Abolfazl Sepahi Badjani, Amirhossein Safari Hosseinabadi and Ghaem Hosseini.

It is important to note that only four were sentenced to qisas (retribution-in-kind) for intentional homicide, while the remaining nine were convicted under vague security-related charges, including under the new Law on Intensifying Punishment for Espionage and Cooperation with the Zionist Regime,⁷⁵ without individual attribution of lethal acts or proof of direct involvement in a killing.

The first three executed protesters, Saleh Mohammadi, 19, Saeed Davodi, 21, and Mehdi Ghasemi were co-defendants accused in a double jeopardy case of involvement in killing, Mohammad Ghasemi Homapour and Abbas Assadi, two police officers in Qom on 8 January. Despite testifying in court that they had been tortured to extract self-incriminating confessions, they were sentenced to be hanged in public, at the scene of the alleged crime.⁷⁶ On 19 March, at the height of the 40-Day War, they were reportedly hanged “in the presence of a group of people”, just 70 days after their alleged crimes.⁷⁷ It is not clear where the hangings took place.

The forced confession of Mohammad Abbasi, a 55-year-old protester, was aired by state media shortly after his arrest.⁷⁸ Tried in a joint case with his daughter, Fatemeh, Mohammad faced double jeopardy for involvement in the murder of Colonel Shahin Dehghani, a police officer. He was hanged in Ghezelhesar Prison on 13 May 2026.⁷⁹ His daughter received a 25-year custodial sentence.

Fathollah Avari, a 42-year-old protester, was sentenced to qisas for the murder of Major Mohammadjavad Bakhshian, a police officer in Hamedan. His forced confession in which he visibly appears distressed, was aired on 19 January. He was hanged in Hamedan Central Prison on 3 June.⁸⁰

In Mashhad, Mehdi Rasouli and Mohammadreza Miri's executions were reported on 4 May 2026 in a case linked by the Islamic Republic to the death of Hamidreza Yousefinejad, a security officer during the 8 January protests. Ebrahim Dolatabadinejad's execution was also reported on the same day in a case connected to the Mashhad protests on charges of "directing and leading" actions that resulted in the death of security forces.⁸¹

Another notable case is known as "Alikhani Square," named after one of the sites of protest in Isfahan, where four policemen (Mohammad Hemati, Valiollah Safari, Hossein Ramezani and Seyed Ali Khoshoui) were killed. State media reported the indictment of sixteen people in the case. IHRNGO has received testimonies of defenants in the case being subjected to physical, sexual and psychological torture to extract false confessions. Their torture-tainted confessions were aired as part of propaganda documentary on 23 January.

Of the dozen defendants sentenced to death, five have already been executed: Erfan Esfandiari and Gol Mohammad Mohammadi, an Afghan national, on 19 July,⁸² Abolfazl Sepahi Badjani and Amirhossein Safari Hosseinabadi publicly hanged in Alikhani Square on 28 July,⁸³ and Ghaem Hosseini, another Afghan national and Gol Mohammad's cousin, on 20 August.⁸⁴ The remaining defendants in the case are at grave risk of execution.⁸⁵

Conclusion

The findings of this report establish that the response of the Islamic Republic of Iran to the January 2026 nationwide protests constituted a widespread and systematic attack directed against the civilian population, involving gross violations of international human rights law and crimes under international law.

Key Findings

- Unlawful lethal force and arbitrary deprivation of life: Security forces committed murder and other inhumane acts through the deliberate deployment of military-grade firearms, snipers and live ammunition against unarmed civilians, executing a coordinated state policy designed to suppress dissent through lethal violence.
- Deprivation of liberty and interference with medical care: State agencies systematically violated the absolute prohibition of torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment by raiding medical facilities, intimidating healthcare staff, arresting wounded demonstrators and actively blocking access to life-saving medical care.
- State-engineered telecommunications blackouts: Authorities executed pre-planned, multi-layered internet and telecommunications shutdowns during peak periods of violence to facilitate human rights violations in an environment of enforced opacity, obstruct independent documentation and deny citizens access to critical information.
- Custodial fatalities and concealment of torture: A distinct pattern of deaths occurred following arrest, detention or contact with state agents. Some evidence shows that the State institutions falsified death certificates and medical records to attribute fatalities to natural causes, concealing severe custodial abuse, torture and extrajudicial killings.
- Judicial weaponisation of the death penalty: The judiciary weaponised capital punishment as an instrument of state terror, executing at least 29 individuals, with at least a hundred others at risk of execution. Proceedings violated fundamental fair trial and due process guarantees through the reliance on torture-extracted confessions, collective charging and broad security offences without establishing individual criminal responsibility.
- Persecution of victims' families and systemic impunity: Following the suppression of street protests, state agencies engaged in sustained campaigns of persecution, arbitrary detention and harassment against victims' families to enforce silence, prevent independent forensic inquiries and conceal the true scale of state casualties and civilian fatalities.

These findings demonstrate individual criminal responsibility and command liability across operational forces, judicial authorities and senior decision-makers. Establishing accountability demands independent international inquiries, the preservation of evidence and the exercise of universal jurisdiction by member states to prosecute those responsible for crimes under international law.

Recommendations

Iran Human Rights (IHRNGO) calls on the international community to:

- Make a moratorium on the death penalty and the revocation of protest-related death sentences a central requirement in all diplomatic engagements and negotiations with the Islamic Republic of Iran.
- Support independent international mechanisms in collecting, preserving and analysing evidence relating to the January killings.
- Back all efforts to identify the chain of command and individual criminal responsibility of officials issuing and executing orders that resulted in mass killings, ensuring their full accountability.
- Utilise all available legal mechanisms, including the exercise of universal jurisdiction where applicable, to investigate and prosecute officials responsible for gross human rights violations and crimes under international law.
- Ensure that accountability for the killing of demonstrators and the release of political prisoners are not sidelined during political or security negotiations.

Annexes

The list of 4,219 individuals killed during the January 2026 protests is presented below across two separate appendices detailing the names, locations and the date of deaths.

Annex 1 comprises the list of 3,895 victims whose identities have been independently verified by at least two independent sources.

Annex 2 comprises a list of 324 victims whose identities have been documented through a single source or for whom the available information remains incomplete.

Baseline Scale: The verified list in this report represents a minimum documented baseline. Severe restrictions on access to information, communication shutdowns, state security pressures and unverified identity or medical records indicate that the true scale of casualties exceeds the total recorded in this report.
